Norris Public Power District Continues to Work on Restoring Outages Due to Snowy Monday

Norris Public Power District has been busy working all day to restore power outages associated with the winter storm that struck southeast Nebraska on Monday. As of 4:00 p.m., there were approximately 400 Norris customers without power located in rural portions of southern Gage and southeastern Jefferson counties. Most of the damage stemmed from heavy, wet snow and wind causing hundreds of broken poles and downed power lines.

Norris crews along with crews from South Central Public Power District, Southern Public Power District, Perennial Public Power District, Seward Public Power District, Custer Public Power District, Nebraska Public Power District, and Beatrice Board of Public Works will continue to work into the night on restoration efforts.

Customers currently without power should make alternate arrangements for shelter for tonight and tomorrow.
